1.0 PREAMBLE

1.1 There are a number of situations where TKC Citizens both on and off settlement land are living in conditions which some may consider as substandard, or where there may be a pressing environmental risk. Examples are where residences do not have running water or adequate/reliable heating systems. Other residences may have a number of broken windows or are in need of some structural repairs such as front steps and or decks to make them safe. A roof may also be leaking and require repair before it causes further damage to other parts of the residence. On the environmental side, both government regulation and insurance providers insist on having fuel tanks upgraded to double walled tanks to reduce the risk of leakage of fuel into the soil. Another could be where a septic field requires substantial repair to remain effective.

2.0 PURPOSE

2.1 With the exception of maintaining TKC's investment in what are considered as TKC Homes on settlement land, there are no funding programs currently available to assist other homeowners with somewhat urgent renovation work, the nature of which is characterized above.

3.0 APPLICATION

3.1 The Nature of the required work described is not such that it increases the financial value of the property, but it may help towards retaining its value, extend the life of the home and move it towards a greater level of functionality, in terms of basic amenities that others would expect as being the norm within today's society.
